

YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

Large Appetite Concerns Mother

Dear Ann Landers: I need your help again. This time on a different subject. How much should an 11-year-old boy eat? This may sound stupid, but it's a serious problem at our house. Our son weighs 90 pounds. He can eat more than my husband. It's nothing for him to devour six or eight biscuits at breakfast. He never seems full. He'll drink as many glasses of milk as we'll give him.

I'm afraid if I take him to a doctor he'll develop a complex or worry that something may be wrong with him. When he told me he ate three big hamburgers and drank five bottles of pop at a school picnic I decided to write to you. Please advise me.—PERPLEXED

Dear Perplexed: You might as well ask me how high is up. I can't tell you through the mail if your son is eating too much. You tell me he weighs 90 pounds but you don't say how tall he is, so I can't even tell you if he's overweight.

Take this boy to a doctor and let HIM advise you. He should have a periodic check-up and this could be part of it.

Also, stop talking about what the boy eats in his presence. Some kids would eat a basket of tacks dipped in axle grease to get attention. When he brags about drinking five bottles of pop at the school picnic I suspect he may be overeating to show off.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 18 and going steady with a boy 21. We've been going steady for six months. Yesterday was our first big argument. He won't let me wear my hair up. My mother says it looks neater up than down. I like it up because it's cooler and more comfortable. He says it looks cheap and sexy. He claims my personality even changes when my hair is up.

I asked him if it was all right to wear it down with him and up when he's not around. He said, "No, I want everyone to see you as I do—wholesome and lovely."

I know you can't tell me which way it looks best, but maybe you can tell me if you think he's being too domineering. He claims he wants what's best for me. Please answer.—B.D.

Dear B. D. If you were engaged to this fellow I'd say you should wear your hair as he likes it. Under the circumstances I think he's being unduly possessive and he should not make such demands.

He may mean well, but hair—up down or sideways should not be THAT important.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm going steady with a very nice clean-cut guy. He has a habit of tickling me and it just drives me nuts. I am more ticklish than most people and have begged him to please not do it. He says it's all in fun and I should be a good sport.

I've tried tickling him back but he's not a bit ticklish and it doesn't bother him a bit. He also likes to wrestle with me in fun, and I don't like this either. My father says it's "revolting" but he's old-fashioned and very conservative about everything.

What are your ideas on this? It's no laughing matter any more.—FRANCINE

Dear Francine: Tickling and wrestling may look like nice clean fun on the surface but they're attempts to wear down your resistance. Tell the big ape "HANDS OFF" and make it stick.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed envelope. Copyright, 1960, Field Enterprises, Inc.

Torrance Juniors Hear Speaker on Communism

Reverend James D. Colbert, in a speech before the Torrance Junior Woman's Club, Marina District, C.F.W.C., expressed alarm at the Communist gains throughout the world and said the widespread American ignorance and indifference regarding Communism and its aims is frightening. Reverend Colbert, who is Vice President of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade, said they already control one billion people and have a tentative timetable set up to take over the remainder. They are winning not by warfare but by ideas.

India is a prime target of the Communists, Africa next, the Middle East, South and Central America. They plan to control these countries one after the other until the United States, encircled, stands alone. We have only to consider the Cuban situation to realize the threat is reaching close to home. Rev. Colbert stated Russia holds off from atomic warfare not only through fear of retaliation but because she is convinced the United States will fall into her hands through encirclement outside and demoralization within.

We must enter the battle to influence people. What people believe becomes the source of

The bride carried a lace covered Bible topped by a white orchid. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Jackie Christiansen was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Gladys Hilton, Janet Jurey, and Judy Frasure.
